PivotHealth Names Patricia Richesin Vice President, Consulting

(Nashville, Tenn., September 29, 2010) – PivotHealth, a leading physician practice management and services company based in Nashville, Tennessee, has announced the addition of Patricia Richesin as vice president, consulting. In this role, Richesin will be responsible for improving practice operations and performance. Her extensive background working with physician groups in complex settings will prove as a valuable asset to the PivotHealth team.

Prior to joining PivotHealth, Richesin was CEO of Healthcare Systems Management in Cheyenne, Wyoming, where she oversaw a management services organization and a private medical practice. Additionally, she supported 35 providers in five locations and provided financial and operational management as well as full spectrum business oversight.

Previous to Healthcare Systems Management, she worked as an area administrator with Providence Physician Group in Everett, Washington, where she administered and managed multiple primary care clinics. Richesin also spent a number of years as director of professional services with Powell Valley Healthcare in Powell, Wyoming, and strategically positioned a two physician practice into a highly successful, multi-specialty group of 14 providers.

Richesin holds a bachelor's degree in business from Excelsior College in New York, and she is a Fellow in the American College of Medical Practice Executives. She served in the U.S. Air Force and is affiliated with the Medical Group Management Association and the American College of Medical Practice Executives.
